

CARDIFF UNIVERSITY MODERN SLAVERY AND HUMAN TRAFFICKING STATEMENT 2020

INTRODUCTION

Modern slavery is a crime and a violation of fundamental human rights. It takes various forms, such as slavery, servitude, forced and compulsory labour and human trafficking, all of which have in common the deprivation of a person's liberty by another in order to exploit them for personal or commercial gain.

Cardiff University are committed to improving our practices to combat slavery and human trafficking. In order to achieve this we are committed to understanding modern slavery risks and ensuring that there is no modern slavery in our own business and supply chains.

This statement is made pursuant to section 54(1) of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 and constitutes our slavery and human trafficking statement for the financial year ending 31/07/2020. In addition, this statement sets out the University's undertakings in respect of the Welsh Government Code of Practice on Ethical Employment in Supply Chains to which the University has committed its support.

POLICIES

The University regularly reviews its policies and procedures to ensure that they adhere to the University's commitment to acting ethically and with integrity in all of its business relationships and to implementing and enforcing effective systems and controls to minimise the risk of slavery and human trafficking taking place anywhere in the University's supply chains.

Policies and processes in place include the following:

- Accredited Living Wage Employer;
- Recruitment and Selection Policy, including the various 'right to work checks', contracts of employment and regulations on the employment of young workers;
- Adherence to and monitoring of the Working Time Directive;
- Flexible working agreements to support minimum statutory time off - occupational entitlement generally surpasses the minimum statutory threshold;
- Job Evaluation Scheme applicable to all posts within the organisation to ensure equality of pay;
- Employment Policy Framework which identifies the expectations of employer/employee behaviours;
- Whistleblowing Policy under which any slavery or human trafficking issues may be raised with senior management, the governing body or externally. Any allegations raised under this policy would be fully investigated and appropriate action would be taken against any member of staff found to have acted in breach of relevant University policies;
- Agency Workers Guidance to ensure agency workers enjoy comparable rights to those of substantive staff.

The University's Dignity at Work and Study Policy provides a commitment to an inclusive environment in which all members of the University community are treated with dignity and respect. Issues of harassment, bullying and discrimination can be raised under this policy, which is supported by a network of wellbeing advisers.

DUE DILIGENCE PROCESSES FOR SLAVERY AND HUMAN TRAFFICKING IN OUR SUPPLY CHAIN

The University meets its needs for goods, services and works in a way that achieves value for money on a whole life basis in terms of generating benefits not only to the organisation, but also to society and the economy, whilst minimising damage to the environment.

Our tendering processes include qualification questions regarding bidders' policies and procedures that ensure we only work with organisations who identify and eradicate forced labour in their own operations. To ensure all those in our procurement supply chains comply with our values, our contract terms require our suppliers to take all reasonable measures to ensure that there are no forms of slavery in their direct and indirect supply chains.

Our 2020-23 Procurement Strategy places a focus on Responsible and Sustainable Procurement and continues to support us in the delivery of our Modern Slavery commitments. Delivering this strategy, we will continue to work to map and mitigate risks identified in our supply chain in conjunction with our contracted suppliers and will be reviewing and developing associated policies and processes.

COLLABORATION

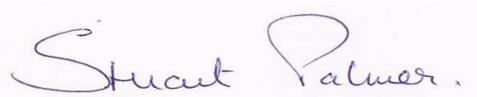

The University collaborates with other Higher Education purchasing consortia and other organisations on risk assessment and due diligence processes to share good practice and avoid duplication of effort for both the universities and external suppliers.

The University also works with the Higher Education Procurement Association (HEPA) and institutions across the sector, being a member of HEPA's Responsible Procurement Group.

TRAINING

Senior Procurement Services staff attended webinars and presentations including training from the Slave Free Alliance and the Chartered Institute of Purchasing and Supply (CIPS) 'Ethical Procurement and Supply'.
