

How has helped local communities tackle food poverty?

Independent evaluation found:

Food Power helps alliances develop and coordinate action to reduce food poverty:

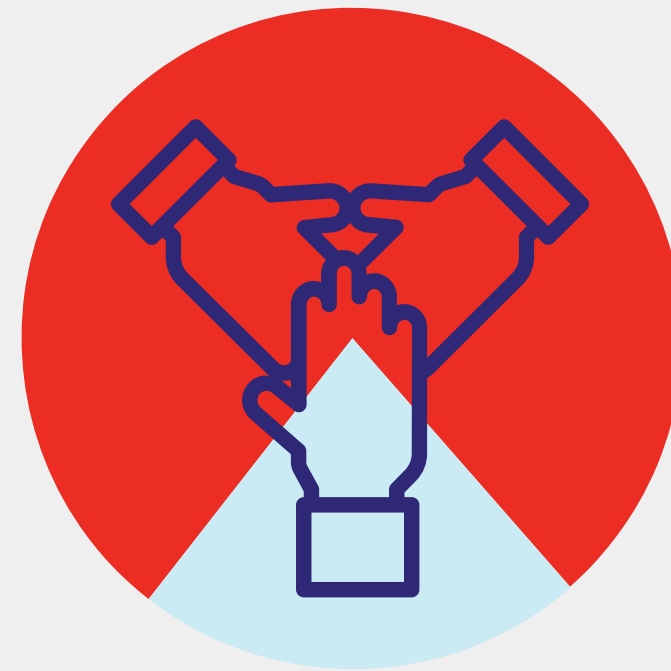

85

alliances around the UK have registered and most now have a food poverty action plan

“Working with a range of community partners under the alliance umbrella ensured co-creation of solutions and maximised resource and capacity.”

Food Power has been influential in changing how food poverty is addressed:

78%

of alliances agree Food Power encouraged them to pursue activities to address the root causes of food poverty

Food Power enables alliances to evaluate their impact:

“Evaluation gives us areas for improvement, areas we’re not tackling, to be able to go out on the ground and support people.”

alliances delivered local evaluation pilots and co-developed the Food Power Collective Impact Tracker

Food Power supports alliances to share learning across the UK to enhance responses to food poverty:

“Food Power has raised our aspirations and encouraged us to improve our practices.”

94%

of alliances said Food Power positively impacted their progress

100%

of alliances engaged with support offered by Food Power

Food Power promotes involvement of people who have experienced food poverty and gives them a platform:

“Everyone wanted to listen to us. These people want to listen to what I’ve got to say!”

75%

of alliances say Food Power influenced them to involve experts by experience

Stakeholders agree Food Power combines connection to action on the ground with a national perspective to make a unique impact:

“Having shared visions and messages by larger and larger cohorts of organisations is incredibly powerful. And that’s how you’ll see change happen.”

“We are a stronger voice together and more credible as a result.”

